

Wilmington Police have identified the body of the man found in the Cape Fear River floating under a pier.

Police have identified the body of 47 year old Terry Kendall McFadden of Wilmington. McFadden's body was discovered on Sunday morning around 10:00 a.m. when a bystander saw the body floating under-neath the pier. He was last seen near his Port South Apartment Complex on Thursday around noon. Autopsy results filed in the Medical Examiner's Office show no sign of foul play. Officials are unable to determine McFadden's cause of death at this time.

Police are waiting for additional medical tests to determine if drugs were involved.
